Notes

Leelanau County

Early Native Americans referred to the “Little Finger” of Michigan as lee-lan-au, or the “Land of Delight.”

Leelanau County became a county in 1863, with Northport as the county seat. After a fire in 1883, the county seat relocated to Leland. In August 2004, the citizens of Leelanau County voted to move the county seat to Section 19 in Suttons Bay Township, and a new Government Center opened in February 2008.

Leelanau County has more than 100 miles of shoreline, and also contains more than 33 lakes, which covers 8% of its 341 square miles (218,240 acres).

Leelanau County is 40% wooded and 24% agriculture, with construction, agriculture, and tourism the main sources of income. Natural resources found on the Peninsula are farmland, forestland, sand, and gravel, and of course, water.

Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore	45,854 acres
Pere Marquette State Forest	5,000 acres
Leelanau State Park, Northport	1,740 acres
Leelanau Conservancy Land Owned	2,694 acres
Inland Lakes	18,218 acres
Wetlands	48,787 acres

Leelanau County and the surrounding area were first occupied by Native Americans. The Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians is a sovereign nation within the borders of the county, owning approximately 750 acres.

Leelanau County’s estimated population for 2020 was 21,761. The recently completed Decennial Census will be finalized later this year.

In the fall of 1970, the US Congress authorized the 71,000 acre Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore for preservation of the natural resources and public use. 45,000 acres of this park are located along the western Lake Michigan shoreline of Leelanau County and include North and South Manitou Islands.

Commercial ferry trips to the islands are available spring through fall from Leland Harbor, and rustic camping is allowed on the islands. North Manitou is a wilderness experience for overnight campers, while South Manitou has day trips that allow visitors to see the 1871 lighthouse and take a vehicle tour to the historic farms or Giant Cedars.

For camping on the mainland, the rustic D.H. Day Campground, with 88 sites, is on M-109 west of the village of Glen Arbor.

One of the highlights of the mainland portion of the Lakeshore is the Pierce Stocking Scenic Drive, a 7.4-mile loop road atop the Sleeping Bear Plateau. Nearby, on highway M-109, is the Dune Climb, where visitors may climb the steep windblown dune at the eastern edge of the plateau.

The historic village of Glen Haven (on M-209) dates back to the wood-powered steamboat era and features a working blacksmith shop, general store, and historic boat museum in the old cannery building. A little farther down the road is the U.S. Life-Saving Station Maritime Museum at the former Sleeping Bear Point Coast Guard Station.

There are 14 trails (12 in Leelanau County), such as Alligator Hill and Pyramid Point, that afford breathtaking views. The Sleeping Bear Heritage Trail stretches from Empire to County Road 669 and offers fantastic biking and skiing. The picturesque setting of the Port Oneida Rural Historic District provides a beautiful drive off Highway M-22 in the northern portion of the Lakeshore.

For maps and information, stop in at the Philip A. Hart Visitor Center located at the eastern edge of the Village of Empire (M-72 off M-22) or call 231-326-4700, ext. 5011.
