• Judy Woodruff:

... The president and the people around him are saying there was widespread fraud. They are saying this election was stolen. Is there evidence that you see to back that up?

• Ben Ginsberg:

There is not evidence so far to back that up.

And it's worth remembering, Judy, that those were allegations that were made before this election, based on past elections, with absolutely no proof of that.

... And trying to create a case after an election is very difficult ...

GOP election lawyer says no evidence to support Trump's claim about mail-in voting fraud

By Chandelis Duster, CNN

Benjamin Ginsberg, a top Republican election lawyer who has represented four Republican presidential candidates, slammed President Donald Trump's claims of widespread voter fraud ...

... Trump's recent comments about widespread fraud in mail-in voting, which risk undermining confidence in the election ...

... Ginsberg wrote, "The truth is that after decades of looking for illegal voting, there's no proof of widespread fraud," adding there are isolated incidents across both parties. "Elections are not rigged."

... The President has also claimed, without evidence, that voting by mail would lead to widespread voter fraud ...

Transcript SELECTIONS:

CNN Reporter Jake: 2024-03-15 J. Michael Luttig, you predicted that the Supreme Court would affirm Colorado's decision to remove Trump from the ballot calling Colorado's decision unassailable in every single respect under the Constitution, unquote. I guess the justices didn't see it your way. What's your reaction?

J. Michael Luttig CNN Transcript: Today's ruling, Jake was both astonishing, unprecedented

... In court, the majority, as the concurrences said, effectively decided the former president will never be disqualified from holding the presidency in 2020. For forever, for that matter. But even more importantly, as the concurrence said, effectively, the court today decided that no person in the future will ever be disqualified under section three of the 14th amendment. Regardless whether he or she has engaged in an insurrection or rebellion against the Constitution of the United States ...

GOP a 'grotesque caricature' of what it was before, says former Sen. John Danforth SELECTIONS

Feb 3, 2021 6:50 PM EDT

John Danforth, a former Republican senator, ... his views on the modern-day Republican Party, former President Trump's impeachment, and the impact of questioning the legitimacy of the election.

• Judy Woodruff:

... And, Senator, when Senator Hawley and others say they don't see anything wrong with challenging the election results — and, in fact, Senator Hawley himself said what he had done was not an effort to overturn the election — what is the danger? What are the consequences in challenging a legal election outcome?

- John Danforth:

Well, the consequences are what you saw on January the 6th. ... It was there, then, an attack on the Capitol Building. It's a fracturing of the country ...

- Judy Woodruff:

Should President — former President Trump be convicted in this upcoming trial in the Senate?

- John Danforth:

Yes, absolutely, he should. If this — if what he did doesn't warrant conviction, what does? ...

17 FACTS THAT PROVE BIDEN STOLE THE 2020 ELECTION_HL

<https://defconnews.com/2020/11/29/17-facts-that-prove-biden-stole-the-2020-election/>

Def-Con News brought you 10 Reasons Why The 2020 Election Results Are Fake. Those reasons were observations of anomalies and things that defied reality, all pointing to a stolen election. Here are some actual statistics and facts that prove 2020 wasn't on the level. Putting everything together and the only conclusion is that Biden stole the White House.

Pollster Patrick Basham ran the numbers and nothing about 2020 makes a damn lick of sense. He laid out these reasons for The Spectator and they're very compelling:

1 – Total vote:

President Trump received more votes than any previous incumbent seeking reelection. He got 11 million more votes than in 2016, the third largest rise in support ever for an incumbent. By way of comparison, President Obama was comfortably reelected in 2012 with 3.5 million fewer votes than he received in 2008.

Trump's vote increased so much because, according to exit polls, he performed far better with many key demographic groups. Ninety-five percent of Republicans voted for him. He did extraordinarily well with rural male working-class whites.

2 – Minority vote:

He earned the highest share of all minority votes for a Republican since 1960. Trump grew his support among black voters by 50 percent over 2016. Nationally, Joe Biden's black support fell well below 90 percent, the level below which Democratic presidential candidates usually lose.

3 – Hispanic vote:

Trump increased his share of the national Hispanic vote to 35 percent. With 60 percent or less of the national Hispanic vote, it is arithmetically impossible for a Democratic presidential candidate to win Florida, Arizona, Nevada, and New Mexico.

4 – History:

Bellwether states swung further in Trump's direction than in 2016. Florida, Ohio and Iowa each defied America's media polls with huge wins for Trump. Since 1852, only Richard Nixon has lost the electoral college after winning this trio, and that 1960 defeat to John F. Kennedy is still the subject of great suspicion.

5 – Cities

Midwestern states Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin always swing in the same direction as Ohio and Iowa, their regional peers. Ohio likewise swings with Florida. Current tallies show that, outside of a few cities, the Rust Belt swung in Trump's direction. Yet, Biden leads in Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin because of an apparent avalanche of black votes in Detroit, Philadelphia, and Milwaukee. Biden's 'winning' margin was derived almost entirely from such voters in these cities, as coincidentally his black vote spiked only in exactly the locations necessary to secure victory. He did not receive comparable levels of support among comparable demographic groups in comparable states, which is highly unusual for the presidential victor.

6 – Counties

We are told that Biden won more votes nationally than any presidential candidate in history. But he won a record low of 17 percent of counties; he only won 524 counties, as opposed to the 873 counties Obama won in 2008. Yet, Biden somehow outdid Obama in total votes.

7 – Down ballot votes:

Victorious presidential candidates, especially challengers, usually have down-ballot coattails; Biden did not. The Republicans held the Senate and enjoyed a 'red wave' in the House, where they gained a large number of seats while winning all 27 toss-up contests. Trump's party did not lose a single state legislature and actually made gains at the state level.

8 – Impossibility:

Another anomaly is found in the comparison between the polls and non-polling metrics. The latter include: party registrations trends; the candidates' respective primary votes; candidate enthusiasm; social media followings; broadcast and digital media ratings; online searches; the number of (especially small) donors; and the number of individuals betting on each candidate.

Despite poor recent performances, media and academic polls have an impressive 80 percent record predicting the winner during the modern era. But, when the polls err, non-polling metrics do not; the latter have a 100 percent record. Every non-polling metric forecast Trump's reelection. For Trump to lose this election, the mainstream polls needed to be correct, which they were not. Furthermore, for Trump to lose, not only did one or more of these metrics have to be wrong for the first time ever, but every single one had to be wrong, and at the very same time; not an impossible outcome, but extremely unlikely nonetheless.

None of these things point to a Biden victory and yet he was declared the winner of the 2020 election. The two things that stick out the most are 1) it was statistically impossible for Biden to have won Arizona, Nevada, and New Mexico and 2) Biden did worse with minorities everywhere but Detroit, Philadelphia, and Milwaukee.

The vote counting was a complete mess in those three cities and the vote totals from them are what gave Biden the states of Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin, as well as the 2020 election. You can literally pinpoint where the theft occurred and it was in these 3 cities.

As an added bonus, Basham detailed 9 examples of election theft:

1. Late on election night, with Trump comfortably ahead, many swing states stopped counting ballots. In most cases, observers were removed from the counting facilities. Counting generally continued without the observers

2. Statistically abnormal vote counts were the new normal when counting resumed. They were unusually large in size (hundreds of thousands) and had an unusually high (90 percent and above) Biden-to-Trump ratio

3. Late arriving ballots were counted. In Pennsylvania, 23,000 absentee ballots have impossible postal return dates and another 86,000 have such extraordinary return dates they raise serious questions

4. The failure to match signatures on mail-in ballots. The destruction of mail in ballot envelopes, which must contain signatures

5. Historically low absentee ballot rejection rates despite the massive expansion of mail voting. Such is Biden's narrow margin that, as political analyst Robert Barnes observes, 'If the states simply imposed the same absentee ballot rejection rate as recent cycles, then Trump wins the election'

6. Missing votes. In Delaware County, Pennsylvania, 50,000 votes held on 47 USB cards are missing

7. Non-resident voters. Matt Braynard's Voter Integrity Project estimates that 20,312 people who no longer met residency requirements cast ballots in Georgia. Biden's margin is 12,670 votes

8. Serious 'chain of custody' breakdowns. Invalid residential addresses. Record numbers of dead people voting. Ballots in pristine condition without creases, that is, they had not been mailed in envelopes as required by law

9. Statistical anomalies. In Georgia, Biden overtook Trump with 89 percent of the votes counted. For the next 53 batches of votes counted, Biden led Trump by the same exact 50.05 to 49.95 percent margin in every single batch. It is particularly perplexing that all statistical anomalies and tabulation abnormalities were in Biden's favor. Whether the cause was simple human error or nefarious activity, or a combination, clearly something peculiar happened.

"Something Peculiar" should be the title of Joe Biden's memoirs. Hair sniffing, letting kids rub his hairy legs, and "dog-faced pony soldier" are certainly not normal things. And neither are any of the "miracles" that happened to make him the next President of the United States.

The only people who believe Biden won the 2020 election fair and square are the ones who helped him steal the White House: democrats and the liberal media. No thinking person can look at this information and conclude that this election was in any way legitimate.
